DELEGATES' REPORTS

1. Australian Coastal Council Conference

Cr Richardson advised he will provide a written delegate's report on this Conference in the Ordinary Meeting Agenda of 9 April 2015. He also advised:

It was an interesting conference and one in which you realise that we are not alone on this matter. WA, Tasmania, Victoria – they are all coming with the same challenges and the same problems. An interesting speech from Bruce Thom, who gave a searing keynote about the lack of consistency in state and federal leadership in this field. He talked about how Senator Robert Hill, when he was the Liberal Minister for the Environment, a cause he championed so strongly, hundreds of millions flowed into coastal works. Jenny George of the ALP under Rudd created a report which was the National Seachange Taskforce which was launched when Byron held the conference. No-one on the Rudd Government then initiated anything from it and under the O'Farrell Government we had that localism where local people could choose their own sea- rise level but no money came. Now we have got Premier Baird and Rob Stokes who as surfers seem to get it a bit more so we will wait and see. That was quite an interesting bit of history showing that regardless of some parties, it can depend on whether someone understands and values our coastal area and is prepared to push for it. He came up with the statement that it has often been said that Federal Government has all the power, State Government has all the policies and Local Government have all the problems and I think everyone in the room acknowledged that has been the case.

Aside from that there was an interesting presentation on changing populations by one of the key population analysts from the Bureau of Statistics talking about the growth of population being doubled for coastal councils and even sharing Gold Coast, which was the closest to us, an increase in population of 70% in only about 20 years. So when it comes to population increases, this area is obviously going to get far more.

Another interesting bit that I think is worth sharing, was the conversation by one of the leaders of the CSIRO who deals with sea level rise and climate change talking about the ice melting and the effect that it has. On one hand he said, they believed that over the next 100 years, or in this century, it probably won't have a great deal of impact on sea level rise but also flagged the fact that it is the uncertainty behind it that is incredibly troubling for scientists because they are not quite sure about the rate. They know it is going to have a significant impact, it just might be a bit more delayed. However, the unknown is when it could quite easily happen on a large scale more quickly and that is one area that the scientists acknowledge they don't really know, but the scenarios are truly alarming.

It was very interesting and also interesting to get some tourism insights from Mornington Peninsula – very similar to us – has 26 hotels or accommodation houses and 26,000 holiday homes. People rent a house, but it is also very traditional in Melbourne where you have your holiday house down there.

It was great to connect with people from Port Douglas to Tasmania, all dealing with similar issues. A more thorough report will be included in the agenda for the next meeting, and I thank Council for sending me down there.

2. Bush Fire Management Committee Meeting

Cr Dey advised the following:

Cr Dey reported on the meeting of 19 March 2015. One topic was a unique community of "dwarf heath" vegetation at Paterson Hill, Byron Bay. There is only 8 hectares of this in the world, all at Paterson Hill. National Parks and Wildlife Service (NPWS) manages about 5 hectares of it and intends to burn that area this year as part of its management. The area requires burning to sustain itself and was last burnt in 1977.

NPWS are adamant that their 5 hectares and the other 3 ha shouldn't be burnt simultaneously. Two authorities manage the remaining 3 ha: Crown Lands (through a Trust) and Council on the small patch around our water tower. The whole lot would be wiped out and wouldn't regenerate if it were all to burn at once.

3. Rous Meeting

Cr Dey advised the following:

I attended a Rous Water Meeting on 18 March. The interesting items were confidential but there was one other, about financial assistance to Rous's own direct customers (ie those supplied but not through one of the four "constituent Councils"). Rous generally has 2 or 3 customers per quarter who have had an "undetected leak" in their line. Rural customers often have a large distribution network downstream of their water meter. Such "poly" lines might get trampled by cattle and then spurt water for months, until a massive water bill arrives from Rous Water. Some bills reach $3,000 or $4,000 for the quarter, instead of a usual $200 or $300. Rous customers have the right to apply for financial assistance with paying part of such a bill.

I don't think we have as many incidences of leakage in this Shire. I think it is more frequent with Rous's own customers because they are rural, being located along the pipelines. They were connected decades ago, when Rous first gained easements through their properties for the large trunk lines that supply water to the Shires. Rous Council wrestled with the processes and considerations behind assisting people with their bills.
