4. POLICY STATEMENT

Byron Shire Council is committed to engaging the community and involving them in decision making processes. This policy recognises the value of engaging the community and involving them in a dialogue which shapes and influences community supported outcomes and the development of partnerships.

Community engagement can take many forms and requires flexibility to respond to the nature, complexity and impact of the issue/s involved. Community engagement is multifaceted and requires a standard of consultation that appropriately responds to the nature, complexity and impact of the issue/s involved.

This policy emphasises that the community should be kept informed throughout consultation processes and receive feedback that demonstrates how their input has influenced decisions. Council also recognises that the range of methodologies utilised may be dependent on the resources that are available.

Finally, Council recognises that under various legislation, for example the Local Government Act 1993, it has obligations in relation to participation, consultation and engagement. To facilitate this commitment to the community/civil society, Council will aim to continually improve its capacity and performance in community engagement through resource development, review and evaluation of its community engagement practices.

Council also supports the Planning for People, a Community Charter for Good Planning in NSW, (adopted on 11 December 2014, Res. 14-624) and endorsed the five key principles within the Charter. A copy can be found at www.thecommunity/civil_societycharter.org and at Appendix 2. This policy reflects the key principle of effective and genuine public participation in strategic planning and development decisions.

5. DEFINITIONS

Community engagement

“Any process that involves the community in problem-solving or decision making and uses the community input to make better decisions” - International Association for Public Participation (IAP2).

Consultation

The act of discussing something with somebody or with a group of people before making a decision about it.

Community

A term used to define civil society that is a group of people who are linked by common interests and collective activity; whether they are stakeholders, interest groups or residents. The group may be a geographic location, of similar interest or of affiliation or identity (such as business or sporting clubs).

A broad term used to define a group of people; whether they are stakeholders, interest groups or residents. A community may be a geographic location (community of place), a community of similar interest (community of practice) or a community of affiliation or identity (such as business or sporting clubs).

Level of impact

The degree to which a community is affected by a decision.

Participation

The degree to which a community is involved in decision making.

6. PRINCIPLES UNDERPINNING COUNCIL’S APPROACH TO COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT

The following principles will underpin Council’s approach to community engagement activities:

6.1 Commitment

Council demonstrates a genuine commitment to quality consultation, partnerships and a desire to hear the community’s views and aspirations.

6.2 Coordinated

Community engagement strategies will be well planned and directed towards achieving a better understanding of the community/civil society’s views on issues of importance to them.

6.3 Timely

Community engagement must seek to will engage stakeholders at the earliest stage possible and continue to keep them informed and involved throughout the process.

6.4 Inclusive

Community engagement will be designed so that the broadest cross-section of the community is involved, especially those that are hardest to reach. Particular strategies may be required to gain involvement when barriers may limit participation (e.g. young people, older people, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people, people from a culturally and linguistically diverse background or people with a disability).

Consultation will be conducted in a way that is consistent with social justice and broad engagement principles such as equity, access, participation and rights.

6.5 Clear

Consultation objectives should be well defined from the outset. The role of the community in the decision making process will be made clear and recognise the decision making responsibilities of elected representatives.

6.6 Transparent

Information provided will be comprehensive and provide objective, professional content about the issue/s involved with any particular project.

6.7 Engaging

Differing innovative methodologies will be used to encourage inclusive participation and engagement of the whole community.

6.8 Meaningful

Consultation activities will provide opportunities for meaningful dialogue and development of meaningful partnerships and input from key stakeholders.

6.9 Accountable

Strategies will be incorporated into community engagement plans to ensure that feedback is provided to the community about the progress of the project or plan and demonstrating how input has influenced the decision-making process.

Council's principles are consistent with the social justice principles of equity, access, participation and rights as prescribed by the Local Government Act 1993.

7. BENEFITS OF ENGAGEMENT

There are numerous benefits that result from engaging the community to shape Council decisions. These include:

- a broader quality discussion and better understanding of the community needs, wants and concerns
- a strengthening of the relationship between Council and community
- transparency in decision making
- better outcomes which match community aspirations
- developing a culture of gaining expertise from local specialists
- increased trust in public administration
- increased trust in community input
- a valued and proactive community that builds partnerships and greater sense of ownership.

8. WHEN TO ENGAGE?

A range of triggers will necessitate engagement of the community in decision making processes. These may include:

- a need to inform a community about matters that will affect them
- complex issues and multiple stakeholders
- issues of significant importance across the Shire
- a need to build trust and respect
- a need to involve the community in seeking solutions
- a desire for the community to be part of a vision for the area
- a difficult history related to a project
- legislative requirements.

9. PRIOR TO CONSULTATION

In the development of key strategic issues and policies, community and stakeholders must have time to participate; therefore, consultation should be planned in advance and include the purpose, process and appropriate terms of reference.

Council will:

- Identify the stakeholders, interested parties and their issues of concern.
- Identify an internal Council project leader as a 'go to' person for community contact.
- Notify the relevant groups and stakeholders using digital and traditional communication.
- Invite the relevant groups and stakeholders to assist in the development process and decide on the appropriate consultation mechanisms. Including:
 - Address language, literacy, culture and inclusiveness.
 - Identify the resources, people and funding required.
 - Allow sufficient time for the consultation, with consideration for time constraints.
 - Decide how the input from participants will be used in the decision-making process.
 - Determine the evaluation and indicators of consultation success.
- Respond and consider requests for additional consultation from community groups and stakeholders.
- Provide a rolling twelve month engagement program with estimated consultation start dates.

10. LEGISLATIVE REQUIREMENTS

There will be occasions when engagement practices must comply with statutory requirements within legislation. In these cases Council will adhere to the legislative requirement as the minimum standard. For example, engagement for particular types of projects is required under the following New South Wales legislation:

- Local Government Act 1993
- Environmental Planning and Assessment Act 1979
- Public Health Act 2010
- Road Act 1993

Legislation requirements may include community members taking part in defining:

- Minimum periods of time for public exhibition
- Methodologies for communication (eg newspaper advertisements as mandatory requirement)
- Specification about who should be consulted
- Methodologies for how consultation has to be undertaken.

While Council must comply with legislative requirements, Council is not prevented from carrying out further engagement where community expectations, local sensitivities or project complexities merit additional consultation.

11. WHAT DETERMINES THE LEVEL OF PUBLIC PARTICIPATION?

The communities' involvement in decision making will vary greatly according to the nature of the project or issue. For most matters, the final decision will be made by Council's elected representatives or by the Executive under delegation.

Community members and key stakeholders have a vital role in voicing concerns and shaping ideas and concepts within projects/issues to help inform final decisions. Council will be open to community groups requesting and initiating consultation and partnering with them to achieve positive outcomes.

The potential level of impact from new, or changes to, strategic planning, issues, projects and services can be classified as:

- Level 1 – high impact on local government area

For example:

1. NSW State Government key planning documents:

Council documents prepared in accordance with NSW Government-initiated key strategic plans including:

- Local Environmental Plan and Development Control Plan
- Coastal Zone Management Plan
- Community Strategic Plan

2. Council-initiated key strategic plans that encompass the Shire:

- Residential Strategy
- Rural Land Use
- Industrial or Employment Strategy

3. It sets a precedent for the Shire

Council decisions that set a significant precedent for the Shire.

4. Festivals defined as 'major'

Applications for major festivals

5. Major environmental impact – eg. coastal inundation

Council decisions that could have a major environmental impact.

- Level 2 – lower impact on local government area

For example:

1. Change to a regional/shire-wide facilities Extension of a facility's opening times

2. Strategies to manage shire-wide assets e.g. street signs Street sign strategy

3. Open space maintenance plan

- Level 3 – high impact on local area or group

For example:

1. Council-initiated key strategic plans that have an impact on a local area/group impact Shire:

- Changes to a service located in a specific area e.g. childcare
- Traffic management strategies
- Redevelopment of a facility

○ Level 4 – lower impact on local area or group

For example:

1. Street furniture renewal
2. Local minor traffic proposals
3. Changes to a local event

The methodology/action for inclusion within Council engagement plans can be found at Appendix 1. Byron Shire Council Engagement Matrix.

In addition, Council will help facilitate engagement where appropriate and raise local awareness on matters that are decided by the State. For example, state-significant development and major festivals.

In helping to recognise and meet community needs, Council will use the 'Public Participation Spectrum', as outlined below, to clearly set out the communities' role.

The 'Public Participation Spectrum', outlined as follows, clearly sets out the level of public participation according to the role the community will have in shaping decisions.

12. PUBLIC PARTICIPATION SPECTRUM

Byron Shire Council's approach to engagement is informed by the internationally recognised "Public Participation Spectrum" developed by the International Association for Public Participation (IAP2) which outlines five levels of public participation. The IAP2 Spectrum acknowledges that all levels of engagement are appropriate and legitimate, and no level is necessarily 'better' than another.

When planning for engagement, Council staff or Councillors, as determined by the meeting, which in the event of this not being resolved by a majority vote of the community members present will be referred to Councillors, will need to determine the most appropriate level of participation depending on the nature and complexity of the project/activity/issue, timeframe and available resources.

The Public Participation Spectrum provides a description of the entire public participation model but it is recognised that Council performs a specific role. Many decisions will be informed by community input and may require professional or expertise contribution; however, ultimately the decision will be made by Council. Accordingly, Council will most commonly conduct engagement at the Inform, Consult and Involve levels of participation.

In addition, Council will choose differing engagement techniques that are appropriate to the circumstances and desired outcomes of the specific engagement. Where the project/activity/issue is significant, Council will formulate a Community Engagement Plan, identifying the specific engagement techniques to be employed and assigning responsibilities for the various tasks.

Council publishes this information on its website www.byron.nsw.gov.au. A Publication Guide is available and outlines Council's structure, functions, the information it holds and how this can be accessed by the community/civil society. The Guide also sets out how members of the community can participate in the formulation of Council policy and the exercise of Council's functions.

18. PRIVACY IN COMMUNITY CONSULTATION

Council will regularly receive personal information during the course of consultation efforts; for example people's names, addresses and contact details within submissions.

APPENDIX 1. Byron Shire Council Engagement Matrix

It is noted that not all issues may fit into one of the impact levels and the methods may need to be adapted in order to reach stakeholders. The matrix acts as a guide for the minimum level of engagement.

APPENDIX 2. PLANNING FOR PEOPLE COMMUNITY CHARTER

thecommunitycharter.org

PLANNING FOR PEOPLE

A COMMUNITY CHARTER FOR GOOD PLANNING IN NSW

Our Vision

A planning system that thinks of both today and tomorrow; is built on fairness, equity and the concept of Ecologically Sustainable Development; guides quality development to the right places; ensures poorly designed developments and those in the wrong place don't get built; and protects the things that matter, from open spaces, bushland and productive agricultural land to much-loved historic town centres and buildings.

Principles

Good planning is governed by the following principles:

- The well-being of the whole community, the environment and future generations across regional, rural and urban NSW.
- Effective and genuine public participation in strategic planning and development decisions.
- An open, accessible, transparent and accountable, corruption-free planning system.
- The integration of land use planning with the provision of infrastructure and the conservation of our natural, built and cultural environment.
- Objective, evidence-based assessment of strategic planning and development proposals.

These principles will guide a planning system that:

- Respects, values and conserves our natural environment and the services it provides.
- Facilitates world-class urban environments with well-designed, resource-efficient housing, public spaces and solar access that meet the needs of residents, workers and pedestrians.
- Provides housing choice, including affordable housing and sufficient housing for the disadvantaged, in a diversity of locations.
- Celebrates, respects and conserves our cultural (including Aboriginal) and built heritage.
- Protects and sustainably manages our natural resources, including our water resources, fragile coastlines and irreplaceable agricultural land for the benefit of present and future generations while maintaining or enhancing ecological processes and biological diversity.
- Retains and protects our crown lands, natural areas, landscapes and flora and fauna for the benefit of the people of NSW.
- Gives local and regional communities a genuine and meaningful voice in shaping their local area and region, its character and the location, height and density of housing. Provides certainty and fairness to communities.

The well-being of the whole community, the environment and future generations across regional, rural and urban NSW

We call for a planning system that integrates short and long term social, environmental and economic considerations to create lasting benefits for communities, now and in the future. This is the concept of Ecologically Sustainable Development (ESD) as currently defined in the Protection of the Environment Administration Act 1991. ESD must be the overarching objective of the planning system. For more information about ESD refer to the Charter Companion document.

Effective and genuine public participation in strategic planning and development decisions

Everyone has the right to participate in decisions that affect their lives. People affected by a planning or development proposal have the right, knowledge and experience to contribute to the final decision. The role of planning authorities includes facilitating community input into the preparation of strategic plans prior to public exhibition and genuine, open dialogue between stakeholders. The role of consent authorities is to consider public comments on development proposals and ensure compliance by developers.

An open, accessible, transparent and accountable and corruption-free planning system

Decision processes must be transparent and accountable. Decisions must be made in public, respond objectively to issues raised in submissions, provide reasons and be subject to the rules of procedural fairness.

The community's ability to seek review of a decision is important in preventing corruption and poor decision-making. All information considered when assessing a proposal must be publicly available and accessible prior to the decision being made. So called 'fast-tracking' of development does not benefit the public interest. Anti-corruption measures must be effective and enforceable.

Disproportionate influence from vested financial interests has no place in planning decisions. The ability to lobby decision makers is a democratic right. However, it is inappropriate to allow companies, wealthy individuals or lobbyists a greater level of access than is available to the public.

The integration of land use planning with the provision of infrastructure and the conservation of our natural, built and cultural environment

An integrated approach is the key to achieving the kind of sustainable settlement patterns that are needed now and into the future. This type of approach will allow future planning to maintain the integrity of natural areas, take into account natural hazards and constraints, locate employment and key social infrastructure in accessible locations, and ensure the provision of sustainable infrastructure systems that use less energy and resources.

Objective, evidence-based assessment of strategic planning and development proposals

The foundation stone of a good planning system is a sound knowledge base that is publicly accessible and is updated and maintained by government in the public interest. The current system in which the developer pays for reports, such as environmental impact statements, creates conflicts of interests. Whilst it is equitable for developers to pay for reports, the objectivity of reports must be ensured by requiring professional standards and keeping the appointment of consultants at arm's length from developers.

This Charter is accompanied by a Companion document that details how this Charter could be implemented.

©August 2014 Planning for People: A Community Charter for Good Planning in NSW has been prepared by a working group of community organisations in consultation with the Better Planning Network, Community Councillors Network, Inner Sydney Regional Council for Social Development, National Parks Association of NSW, National Trust of Australia (NSW), Nature Conservation Council of NSW, NSW Heritage Network, Shelter NSW and the Total Environment Centre.
